The Posázaví region is undoubtably the regional pearl of Central Bohemia, reflecting the unparalleled harmony of natural beauty and the noble display of human achievement. One can feel the unique landscape-forming purpose and art of our predecessors which has been present here right from our very beginnings. The rugged landscape is interlaced with peaks offering ideal conditions for panoramic views into the vast beyond.

The topography here counts twelve middle age castles and strongholds, a multitude of prominent architectonic features – castles, churches, chapels but also a great deal of fine pieces of architecture – crosses, columns of the crucifixion and plastic, forming the charm of this cultural landscape, which, in terms of its uniqueness, is unrivalled in Europe. Luminous, pure, romantically idyllic, sometimes however murky, menacingly roaring, here is where the Sázava river flows to which many legends and tales are pinned, and which since time immemorial, has unmistakably defined the atmosphere of the whole region.

Zdeněk Sternberg

Český Šternberk Castle

When meandering around the Posázaví, don't miss out on a visit to Český Šternberk castle, you will be rewarded with a view of the gothic castle which majestically shoots up to a point over the river Sázava. During the tour around the grounds, you will be able to take a glimpse into the more than seventy year history connected largely to the Sternberg lineage. The castle was founded around 1241 by Zdeslav of Sternberg.

The tour route leads through fifteen rooms rich with stylish furniture and enhanced with a collection of family portraits, porcelain, weapons, hunting trophies as well as silver miniatures. Among the most interesting exhibits, undoubtedly includes a collection of graphic papers dating back to the period of the Thirty Years War.

South of the castle, you will stumble across an outpost bastion, the so-called duneon. It is part of an ingenious rampart system installed at the turn of the 15th and 16th centuries. From May till the end of August 2011, an exhibition on old-style prams is running at the castle. Aside from historical prams for children from 1860 to 1960, you will also be able to see dolls, period clothing for babies, swaddling clothes, pillows, exhibits of children's bedrooms and pots and pans for dolls.

Opening times:

May, September	tues – sun	09:00 – 17:00

Konopiště castle

The original impregnable gothic fortress Konopiště was founded 700 years ago. In conjunction with a change in proprietor's, so too changed the look of Konopiště castle. In 1887 it was purchased by the archduke, František Ferdinand d'Este, subsequently heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne. After marrying the Czech countess, Žofie Chotkova, the castle became the home of the archduke family.

Once within the rich interior of the castle, you can admire rare collections dominating the space, the so-called Estensky armoury station which ranks among the largest in Europe. The large trophy hall is testimony to František Ferdinand's passion for hunting who, during his life time, managed to kill almost 300.000 animals. A glimpse into the private apartments of the successor's family also offers a unique opportunity.

THE TRADITIONAL REGION POSÁZAVÍ

Týnec nad Sázavou town

A mixture of pulsating barrages, rocky hillsides, bubbling rapids, bellowing putlogs of the Posázavský Pacifik and the omnipresent feature of camping. Among the most sought after tourist destinations include the stone Roman rotunda from the 11th century or the watch tower in the prismatic Gothic tower from the 13th century which is the summer residence of the protected large mouse-eared bat. Inside Týnec castle you will find a museum with a rare exposition of the Týnec stoneware.

The jewel of this town is the circular First Republic villa belonging to the industrialist, Ing. František Janeček, one of the founders of the former JAWA motorcycle manufacturing plant. The 14th century ruined castle Zbořený Kostelec is also worth a look. Once upon a time it had been protected as a trading path across the Sázava river, the establishment of which also involved the Czech King, Václav II.

Sázava is above all linked to the life of the Czech patron Saint Prokop. Until recently people believed that its history didn't begin until the Middle Ages however archaeological finds have discovered that there was human presence on the territory of the town already during the period of the Agricultural Age.

Among prominent personalities of the Sázava included František Kavalír, founder of the former glassworks. The restorer of the Slavic Sázava, Peter Method Klement, a Sázava pastor also worked here. The playwright, poet and actor, Jiří Voskovec was born here later also spending time here. In his honour the local theatre group has organised a competition show of amateur dramatics called Voskovec's Sázava.
